are saying the screensavers are off Slade: I see in the logs some arp entries but they don't seem to match which log? rtyuio: Did you recently make any changes to your /etc/network/interfaces file? Pici: yep isnt there also a firewall log ? Slade: but I can't find the relevant lines Slade: I just want to see what is the arp resolution when I ping the host Slade: if the ping is successful Slade: I can use arp to track the ip Slade: but if there is no result is there any log file I can check? yes /var/log/syslog or /var/log/messages.1.gz rtyuio, What is your end goal here? Slade: thanks wileee: what do you mean by end goal? rtyuio, Your end goal is what do you hope to see this finished? wileee: I want to use the command arp ok, you will have to say what you are really trying to do here im on 16.04 and i cant for the life of me find the option to change my display resolution wileee: I want to see if my hosts ip from the arp command changes rtyuio, Maybe see if you get an answer in ##networking, thanks. jimmy51vino: what are you trying to do? rtyuio, Is it working yet? wileee: yes wileee: but it can be different from the ip that I get with ifconfig daftykins: i want to 82157476af
